THE EAGLES OPEN FOUR NIGHTS' FAIR

Freeman's Hall Transported Into a Dutch Village---A Big Crowd at Opening.

The Groote Winkle is the title of the hall and it presents a picture that has not been duplicated here in this town. It takes this name from the center of the hall and the long arms revolve and as the whole structure including the arms are outlined in many colored electric lights, the picture is one of beauty.

Around the sides of the hall are the different booths all of the same style and all decorated with many electric lamps making the entire setting brilliant and beautiful. In the booths are displayed the usual assortment of pretty things such as fancy work, gifts, candies, aprons, etc. all attractive enough to create a big demand and keep the bright-eyed and attractive attendants on the jump.

There was a big crowd present when the fair was officially opened by Mayor D. W. Badger at eight o'clock. His Honor made a brief speech in which he wished the Eagles every possible success and complimented them on the handsome appearance of the hall and the long arms

FORT ETHAN ALLEN NEGRO RUNS AMUCK, KILLING TWO

Third Victim Will Die---Held 20 Troopers at Bay Until Wounded in Leg

Burlington, Vt., Oct. 10—Running out a word, pointed the loaded rifle amuck late today. Matthew Carlisle, a colored trooper of the Tenth cavalry, United States army who was under arrest in his quarters at Fort Ethan Allen, shot and fatally wounded his guard and fleeing, sought refuge in a house where he shot dead a woman lying in bed and probably fatally wounded another. He was captured only after he had been wounded by a shot from a detachment of troopers whom he had held at bay for half an hour. Carlisle's victims are all colored.

The Dead.

ANDREW FOX, member of Troop D. U. S. A.

MISS SARAH WASHINGTON, 19 years.

It is believed tonight that Miss Beatrice Stuart, 18 years, who was shot in the chest by the frenzied negro, could not survive her wounds.

With Carlisle, after the latter had surrendered, she was taken to the post hospital at Fort Ethan Allen for treatment.

Carlisle posted behind a window in the building in which he sought refuge stood off half a hundred troopers for nearly thirty minutes, firing a dozen shots but missing his objects because the return fire which riddled the house about him with bullets made him shoot wildly. When he received a trifling wound in the leg, Carlisle called out that he was ready to surrender.

"Don't shoot any more, I'll come down," he said.

The belief that he had been mis- treated, expressed at mess today, is believed to be the reason for Carlisle's outbreak. Trooper Fox, who is understood to have caused Carlisle's arrest today for not reporting for fatigue duty this morning, was apparently the object of the frenzied trooper's attack. But to messmates this noon, it was recalled tonight that he said: "I guess with this arrest I'm through with the army. I might as well do something worth while, while I'm about it."

As he was under arrest "in quarters," Carlisle was allowed the usual custody of his army rifle and ammunition, and when he strolled out of his quarters shortly after 4 o'clock this afternoon, carrying his rifle and with his ammunition belt fastened about him he occasioned no attention. But he immediately headed for Private Fox, then twenty rods away and fired at him about midway taking off the back of his head with a single shot.

A group of soldiers nearby sprang up at the sound of the shot, but were held back by Carlisle who, still with him in charge.

Carlisle tonight was in the custody of the federal officials. But as his rampage extended into the jurisdiction of the state courts, it is not known whether the federal officials or those of the state will finally take charge.

FLOOD DOES GREAT DAMAGE TO RAILROAD

Denver, Oct. 10.—With telephone and telegraph service crippled and more than 300 miles of railroad out of commission, only meagre reports are being received from the flood-swept district of Southwestern Colorado and Northwest New Mexico, comprising an area approximating 100 by 75 miles.

There are rumors of heavy loss of life, but the verified death list so far is comparatively small. John Rice was drowned while aiding in the rescue of pupils at the Methodist Mission School, near Farmington, N. M., and near Blanca, Colo., a Mexican family of seven are reported drowned. From various other points come reports of scores of persons swept away in the flood.

From Alamogordo it is reported that 20 Indians at the shipwreck agency of the Navajos were lost in the waters. All the buildings at the agency, erected at a cost of $200,000, are reported to have been destroyed.

Property loss is estimated at approximately $5,000,000, a large part of which falls on the Denver & Rio Grande road. Practically the entire narrow-gauge system of this road, now known as the Rio Grande Southern, is out of commission and train service to a number of towns cannot be resumed if it is said under 60 days.

Residents of towns in the flood district face a serious situation from food shortage.

Confirmation of the entire destruction of the hamlet of Arboles has been received. Every building in the village, including the railroad depot and a string of box cars that were on a siding, were swept into the San Juan river. No loss of life is reported there.

Late reports indicate that the flood waters are subsiding.

BOY SCHOOLS TAKE UP THE SCOUT MOVEMENT

Principals of Preparatory Schools Find Scout Activities an Excellent Supplement to the Work of the Classroom and the Gymnasium. Scout Badges Provide Fun and Incentive for the Boys.

The leaders of the Boy Scouts of America have made arrangements with several boys' preparatory schools throughout the country to adopt the Boy Scout movement as a supplement to their educational work. Many other academies are considering the adoption of it. Scouting activities in a general way have been taken up by several schools and have been found very helpful and popular. The different phases of scouting can be added to the school work and give additional incentive to the boys both in their studies and in their athletic work. For instance, a boy who becomes a scout can win badges for being proficient in various studies, in athletic events and in his tramps on holidays through the country around the academy which he attends.

The training which the boys receive by engaging in other scout activities can be used as a substitute for military drills and tactics. In the majority of schools the military training is given simply as a means of discipline. Scout activities provide discipline, body building and character training, and they take the boys' mind away from the thought of war.

Educators are enthusiastic over the scout movement. Captain Ferrara, commandant of the Department of Military Service of the State University School, Okla., has taken up scouting. Thomas Aston, principal of the public school in McAlester, Okla., is interested in the educational value of scouting. Captain J. W. Bare, who is an instructor in the Culver Summer Naval School, Culver, Ind., has been teaching boys under his charge scouting for several years, following the principles laid down in the manuals of the British Boy Scouts and the Boy Scouts of America. Captain Bare already has turned out first class scouts. "Our Requirements," he says, "are stiff and are somewhat more detailed than covered generally."

Speaking about the plan of winning over the boys' schools, Samuel A. Moffat, Business Secretary of the Boy Scouts of America says:

"For years emphasis has been placed upon military training by preparatory schools and academies using the military drills and tactics. Undoubtedly this makes a strong appeal to the boy and his parents, but I am firmly convinced that at this time when the dominant note is for peace, that the educational institution is well advised of the opportunity of the appeal that the scout movement is making to boys by including some of these activities in its curriculum will take a forward step in educational work, which I believe, will prove of great benefit both to the institution and the boys with whom it works. It believe scouting will prove helpful."

"The scout laws provide a program for self-government that cannot be equalled. The boy on taking the scout oath is placed upon his honor to obey these laws which require that he be trustworthy, loyal, helpful, courteous and obedient. The movement places the burden of the demand for recreative exercises and physical training upon the boy. Scouting presents an attractive method of interesting the boy in history, restaurant was continued until today.

BOAT OWNERS FINED

Three Motorists Found Negligent by Revenue Cutter Officers

The quest of the revenue officers of the Androscoggin for motor boat proprietors who evade the treasury department laws in the operation of their boats was again successful. The revenue service officers bagged three negligent owners and have imposed fines amounting to $300.

Clifford Woodbury of this city was hit the hardest. Woodbury had not operated his boat throughout the season until the day the Androscoggin arrived. The motor beats of the dation of the two bodies and the cutter, dousing in and out among the craft in the harbor, approached. The church in this city has about 100 members. It is so constituted that the will of the majority is absolute. A progressive element of the church favors consolidation with the Calvinistic Baptists, but the staid old timers oppose the union and announce that should the majority favor absorption they will not pledge themselves to attend any particular church.

In the river they inspected one of the boats used by James Boardman to transport people between this city and the Kittery shore. Boardman's boat did not contain the stipulated number of life preservers. A fine of $300 was imposed on Boardman.

George Witham of Kittery Point was the third offender roped in by the officials. His boat was not provided with a whistle. For this neglect Witham was fined $100. The motor boat owners anticipate that the department will reduce the fines to a nominal sum, as was done last year.

Sailor With Arm Taken Off, Ran to His Ship for Aid.

Los Angeles, Oct. 10.—Charles Henry Townsend, aged 21, coxswain of the torpedo boat destroyer Whipple, gave an exhibition of remarkable grit at San Pedro last night.

In attempting to board a switch engine, Townsend fell under the wheels and his right arm was severed cleanly at the shoulder. Instantly regaining his feet, the sailor ran at full speed a distance of a hundred yards down the docks, until he reached the gang plank of the Whipple. Boarding his ship, he was given first aid treatment and then was rushed to the Marine Hospital in this city.

Surgeons said today that Townsend had a fair chance for recovery, he enlisted from Stamford, Conn.

THREE KILLED WHEN BUILDING COLLAPSED

Boston, Oct. 10.—Three men were killed and a fourth seriously injured when part of a building collapsed at the junction of Hanover and Battery streets this afternoon. The structure was five stories high, of brick, and was in the process of remodelling. All the men killed or injured were in a contractor's shanty near the building on the Battery street side. Tons of brick, stone and timbers were thrown on top of this shell. Those killed were Joseph Adolph, a contractor, who lived at 50 East Springfield street; John J. Mazur of Intervale street; Roxbury, and an unknown man who was consulting with Adolph on business. S. Schwartz, a carpenter, was taken to the Relief Hospital with a broken collarbone, severe contusions to the left arm and bruises all over his body.

The collapse came during the noon hour and this fact undoubtedly saved the lives of many, as there were twenty-five plasterers at work in the building during the morning, as well as plumbers and carpenters. Those who were buried in the shanty were dug out by policemen and firemen.

An iron column that supported the corner of the second floor gave way and that floor collapsed, carrying down the three floors above it, as well as a corner of the roof. The collapsed part of the building was a comparatively small section at the corner of the two streets, but the walls on the Battery-street side cracked for some distance when the supporting floors gave way.

When the crash came Patrolman Donald McGivory was standing at the junction of Hanover and Fleet streets and he immediately rang the fire alarm. With the arrival of the apparatus James J. Connolly of engine number 4 used the telegraph key in the box and thus notified the State and local police departments, the building commissioner, the fire commissioners and the hospitals.

A flimsy slating that was erected on two sides of the building bulged out on the Hanover-street side until it caught on the cross-wires that support the trolley wires.

PLACE BLAME FOR COLLISION

Nashua, Oct. 10.—As a result of an investigation of the head-on collision of two freight trains at Hampstead, N. H., Monday, which caused the death of Allen F. Bradley, engineer of train 307, and the destruction of two engines and 12 cars, the crews of train 346 have been found at fault.

The men held responsible by the railroad officials are James Gaffney, the conductor, and Charles Manchester, engineer. Both live in Ayer, Mass., to which point train 346 was bound.

The investigation was held today at division headquarters in this city and the result was announced by William R. Mooney, superintendent of the Worcester, Nashua & Portland division. Mr. Mooney said:

"The wreck was due to the misunderstanding of the orders on the part of the conductor and engineer of train 346, the train which was coming toward Nashua. The train was having waited at Hampstead until 3 o'clock a. m., as directed in train order, No. 6."

The wreckage has been cleared away so that traffic over the line was

THEATRICAL TOPICS

The Irish Players

Unless the management can succeed in prolonging their stay, the Irish Players, now appearing at the Plymouth Theatre, Boston, will begin on Monday next their fourth and farewell week of their engagement at this new and beautiful playhouse.

As a special feature the management has chosen as the attraction for the entire week, "The Playboy of the Western World," a comedy in three acts by the late J. M. Synge, one of the most noted of Irish playwrights.

The play is said to be the strongest of the list of plays written by this eminent author and without question the most interesting of the entire repertoire presented by this wonderful organization.

It is safe to say that the success achieved by these remarkable players has never before been equaled in Boston. Their versatility and natural acting, depicting true Irish life, has captivated both the press and public of Boston and as a mark of the latter's esteem and appreciation the players have been greeted with capacity house at every performance.

Never in the history of the American stage has the theatre going public of Boston been treated with such rare and artistic acting. Since the beginning of their engagement the management has received scores of letters commenting upon the wonderful ingenuity of this organization. Simplicity, naturalness and unconventionality are so easily blended by the versatility each player possesses that the spectator is thrilled the moment the curtain rises. If you have not witnessed this clever aggregation of wonderful players you should not miss this opportunity. The company is booked for a brief tour of America and will not play any other city in New England, outside of Boston. Therefore if you are the lover of natural acting plays tinged with an element of rich humor and tender pathos, you should not miss the opportunity of witnessing the "Irish Players." They have caused a tremendous sensation in Boston.

Wild Parrots Are Fighters.

Parrots when in their native wilds live in flocks and guard themselves by a complete police system which enables them to marshal their collective force quickly when any animal or bird attacks one of their number. They seem to be disciplined and trained in fighting together, and all other birds and animals are afraid to attack a parrot unless the bird can be caught alone. Even then a shrill call summons the parrot army to the rescue. It is said that in the forests all parrots die of old age and that none is ever killed by birds of prey or other wild animals.

St. Martin and the Dictionary.

St. Martin when he divided his cape with a naked beggar at the gate of Aix-en-Provence gave also two words to the English language. The oratory in which this torn cape was preserved as a sacred banner acquired the name of "chapelle" (from the French "chapeau"), the custodian being termed "chaplain," and thus our English words "chapel" and "chaplain" are derived.—Westminster Gazette.

RAILROAD NOTES

One hundred feet of new work between the toll gate and the first trestle going east on the Portsmouth and Kittery bridge, has been completed by Foreman Wherren and crew.

A special train was sent to Kittery on Tuesday where an invalid was taken aboard for Boston.

General Manager Morris McDonald of the Maine Central railroad passed through here in a special car attached to the 10:35 a. m. train for Boston.

A special car was sent to York Beach on Tuesday, returning today with an invalid passenger, Henry Sampson, en route to New York.

NIAGARA NOT IN DANGER

Niagara, Oct. 11.—The people of this city have appointed a committee with the object of assuring the country that the grandeur of Niagara Falls has not suffered and that it is in no danger of suffering from the diversion of the relatively small quantity of water allowed by the American-Canadian Waterways Treaty. The committee, which includes among its members Congressmen J. S. S. Immons and some of the most prominent men in this section of the state, consists of three representatives each of the local board of trade, the board of aldermen and the industrial commission.

The chief object of the framers of the treaty between the United States and Canada was to preserve the beauty of the falls; their secondary object was to render useful a vast water power in so far as the use of the power would not detract from scenic beauties. In fixing the limit upon the quantity of water that could safely be diverted for power purposes the men who negotiated the treaty acted upon the advice of engineering experts, and the agreement is a permanent safeguard against dangerous encroachments.

At present the diversion on the American side is 4500 cubic feet per second less than the treaty allows. One of the first things the committee of citizens intends to do is to arrange an actual demonstration to verify the opinion of experts that this diversion will have no visible effect on the volume of water that flows itself over the crest. The test can be made by opening the ice runs in the powerhouses and taking the additional quantity of water from the Niagara river for a few minutes.

United States Army engineers, the members of the committee on foreign affairs and representative citizens from all over the country will be invited to witness the demonstration.

The shortage of the corn crop this year, as compared with last is accounted for partly by the fact that those who should have given it close attention have spent too much of their time looking for coast-to-coast airships.

AMONG OUR EXCHANGES

The Bench Unattractive.

The appointments by Governor Foss of the three members needed to complete the full quota of the Superior Court are of men who have some local reputation in their neighborhoods and are apparently capable of acting as judges. On the whole it must be confessed that the seven men recently chosen are hardly up to the Superior Court Standards. Two of them are excellent judicial material, but the other five can scarcely be called better than mediocre. It was supposed in the first place that the governor had not been able to secure the men he sought for these places, but no such explanation has come from the governor's office. On the contrary it is understood that the governor got the men he wanted. It is regrettable that he should not have striven to secure the very best type of men for these positions, for it is plain to all observers that more fit men could have been secured. We say this not unmindful of the fact that the position o' judge of the Superior Court of Massachusetts is no longer attractive to eminent lawyers. What the appointive power can do to secure men who are of proper judicial temper, but have never made pronounced successes at the bar or some young rising lawyers who have not yet reached great fame of fortune, but are full of promise and yet are willing to give up their chances for a large income in exchange for the honor of a judgeship. One serious handicap to the position in Massachusetts is that the Superior Court meets all over the State; it is a peripatetic body and the judge has practically no home life at all. It is said that one judge recently spent just two weeks at his home between November and May. To a man who has a home and a family and who likes to take his otium cum dignitate this sort of life possesses few attractions. The best hotels in the county seats of Massachusetts are not sufficiently elegant and homelike to act as a substitute for one's home. The expenses of such hotels are high and it is not possible for the judge in his leisure moments, after court adjourns, to mingle with the public or even with the lawyers of the court which he might do at home. Some of the loneliest evenings in Massachusetts are those spent by the judges of our Superior Court. Even a bachelor who has no home cannot be much tempted by this place.

Another reason for good lawyers refusing positions on the bench is that they have observed the tremendous amount of time spent on petty cases. One eminent lawyer in Massachusetts is responsible for the assertion that three-fourths of the time of the judges of the Superior Court is spent in considering personal damage cases, and the weariness of such cases is enough to take the vitality out of any judge and render the position extremely unattractive to any brisk lawyer. Even the increase of salary from sixty-five hundred to eight thousand dollars by the last General Court has not made this position any more attractive. It is really a serious situation and the only remedy for it seems to be to select men from the smaller towns of the State rather than in the cities. In the smaller towns the financial rewards of a lawyer are not so great and the appeal of the judgeship is much stronger. But even this is not a wholly satisfactory solution because the lawyers that come from smaller towns are not aware of conditions in the cities in cases which they are called to preside and where the background is very essential. The problem is certainly a puzzling one indeed. And Governor Foss has not relieved it in any way.—Boston Herald.

A Capital Offence.

A Match for Old Uncle Ben.—A jolly old friend of ours tells us he has a match for our story of Benjamin Akerman, Esq., the shoemaker, aged 85 years. She is the widow of Mr. John Underwood, formerly of Portsmouth; and though now 86 years of age, has been visiting her children in Massachusetts and New York, making long journeys, often alone and is yet Hale and hearty. She is sister to Daniel P. Brown, Esq., of this city, who, though he has seen nearly fourscore years, has recently advertised in the Chronicle the resuming of his old business as Justice of the Peace.

A letter from the Southeast of Missouri states that large numbers of slaves are being constantly forwarded by their masters into Arkansas and Texas, as they have recently been from the northern and western parts of the state; and it is said there are not now much more than half as ed for shooting down on the public street an estimable physician. When arrested he stated in fervid fashion the grounds of his self-justification in these words: "Dr. Pettit has been heapings insults upon me for years." When asked for specifications, it was not murder, arson, embezzlement, or greyness. He had not been charged by his victim with having wrecked a financial institution or a happy home. Continued the prisoner: "The worst insult of all, and the one which always haunted me, was the rumor that Dr. Pettit set about to the effect that once voted the Republican ticket. This was the most horrible outrage I ever had perpetrated upon me."

But it is wholesome, sometimes to see ourselves as others see us." In some of the rural districts of Maine and Massachusetts, where Republicanism is the only form of political orthodoxy and where Democracy is a negligible form of heresy, it will come with a shock of amazement to know of large communities in which Republicanism is regarded as a political crime, permitted to exist by a wise Providence, the purpose of which is mysteriously hidden from human eyes.—Boston Herald.

Explaining

The conservative papers in Canada that were so liberal in their abuse of everything American in their annexation bugey campaign against reciprocity, are now explaining that there was really no spirit of unfriendliness to the United States in all this. Now that they have accomplished their purpose the Canadian anti-reciprocityites want it understood, apparently, that all their fulminations against Uncle Sam are to be taken in a purely Pickwickian sense. This is virtually an admission that their anti-American talk was political claptrap and their anti-annexation issue pure humbug. This has been manifest to Americans from the start of the Canadian campaign, and to them it seemed incredible that the Canadian people could be fooled by it. It was a source of amusement more than of annoyance on this side of the border that this country was used as a bugaboo to frighten the Canadians away from their own interests. But what annoyance there was is not much allayed by the assurance of the conservatives that they simply made the United States a bugaboo for their own political purposes and in no spirit of unfriendliness. This country does not enjoy being labelled and abused to the limit, just to enable a political party in Canada to win a victory on false pretences and humbug.—Portland Argus.

More Black Cravats

The decree, just issued by one of the leading eastern railway systems, that henceforth colored neckties may not be worn by conductors and brakemen or other employes, and that the tie must be black in those arbitrary edicts that challenge dissent. Are not the forces of society today making for uniformity of opinion conduct, dress and doors with the one idea of learning speech quite strong enough without something, find that not only are they the great transportation agencies of learning, but they are also having a ing office, the miniature electric rail-way connected with life size block signals with semaphores swinging up and down, the model diary, the rubber shop factory, the chocolate machinery, the sugar refinery, the life size telegraph and telephone poles strung with wires along the side of the hall—such things as these fascinate every one. They are things that cannot be seen every day, and to have them, with a score of others, gathered together under one roof, is indeed exceptional.

Then there are such other striking features as Atwood's record-breaking biplane, the marvelous collection of devices for preventing accidents, the display of vegetables, said to be the finest of its kind ever made, the Daniel Webster Plow, the remarkable variety of up-to-date farm utensils, the beautiful motor boats and newest New England made automobiles, the jewelry display, the unique bill-posting exhibit where the posters are changed every day.

It is unnecessary to go further. Indeed, this is by no means intended to be anything even approaching a complete classification. It is simply a sketch to indicate why the public finds the present Exposition superior to others.

And this should be the case, for this show is the result of three years' careful planning, and is made with the sole object of showing comprehensively what New England is and does. No effort or expense has been spared. The Boston Chamber of Commerce has done its part. The manufacturers and others who are exhibiting are doing their share. And now the public is awakening to its own opportunity.

The constantly increasing attendance of the past week shows that before the month is out a very considerable proportion of the people of New England will have been impressed with the lessons and delighted with the pleasures of this Exposition.

Liszt Fooled Them.
Wrapped in his dressing gown and with feet encased in slippers, Franz Liszt was sitting comfortably one evening in his armchair ready for work and inviting inspiration. On the floor above, in the apartments of a banker, a noisy musical soiree was in progress. Polonaises had succeeded waltzes, and nocturnes had followed polonaises, when suddenly the door of the salon opened, and Liszt entered, still wrapped in his dressing gown. The astonishment of the company may be imagined. With slow steps Liszt walked toward the piano, and the young key pounder who was sitting at it quickly left his place. Liszt sat down at the instrument, carelessly swept his fingers over the keys as if to prelude, and then suddenly beat down the cover and put the key in his pocket. And immediately, with the same tranquill air with which he had entered, he went out and returned to his room, where he could work at his ease.

BEST EVER HELD IN NEW ENGLAND, VERDICT OF PUBLIC ON EXHIBITION

Visitors, Exhibitors and Press Agree in Praising the Show. Enters Second Week.

The verdict of the public and press has been rendered upon the New England Industrial and Educational Exposition. By many who have seen all the expositions of recent years, it is pronounced unqualified—the best ever, as those who planned it knew it would be.

Its success is due chiefly to three things:

1st, it covers all New England thoroughly, being by no means local.

2nd, it shows graphically all the leading industries of the six states, not just a few.

3rd, it is interesting to people of all ages, occupations and conditions. The latter point is one particularly to be emphasized. Although its purpose is serious and educational, as should be the purpose of every great undertaking, it is not a "dry as dust" show." People who have entered the doors with the one idea of learning speech quite strong enough without something, find that not only are they the great transportation agencies of learning, but they are also having a country joining in the crusade mighty good time. People who care against individuality? For even to be entertained find that they are though similar caps, clothing, brass, not only enjoying themselves hugely, buttons and stripes, have made of but are being instructed.

It is contended that one reason for the ineffectiveness of some pitchers is that they are not worked often enough and the record of Radbourne, who pitched 40 consecutive games, is recalled. But the fact seems to be

One Use of the Eel.

It is difficult to exhaust the uses of the eel. Experts in top whipping pronounce a dried eel skin an admirable lash, and tops are by no means the only victims thereof. There is that affecting passage in Mr. Pepys' diary: "April 24, 1663. Up betimes, and with my salt eel went down in the parlor and there get my boy and did beat him till I was fain to take breath two or three times. Yet for all I am afraid it will make the boy never the better, he is grown so hardened in his tricks, which I am sorry for, he being capable of making a brave man and is a boy that I and my wife love very well." "Salt eel" appears to have been a unfeeling term for a rope's end, and it is not certain that Pepys' instrument of castigation was actual eel's skin. But the original "salt eel" told its mark. —London Chronicle.

They Liked the Story.

Cenan Doyle related this anecdote to show how a good story can delight simple minded folk:

In a remote village the blacksmith had got hold of an old copy of a successful novel. In the long evenings he used to read it aloud to the villagers who fairly revelled in it and listened it out patiently to the end. At length, when the happy turn of fortune arrived which brings the hero and heroine together and sets them living long and happily, according to the most approved rules, the villagers were so delighted by the happy ending that they rushed off to procure the church keys and rang a merry peal, as they were wont to do when a member of their community was married.

ITALY IS MOVING TROOPS TO TRIPOLI

Rome, Oct. 10 (via Frontier)—The red in two days. Plans for this have been long making. It is known that the general staff has made a study or Tripoli. This was learned from messages in conventional language that escaped the censor.

A large contingent, comprising the largest part of the total force, sailed from Naples last night and another fleet of transports left Taranto at sunrise today. Further troops will depart from Assoia tonight. These three groups will assemble as one east of Malta.

The landing of a whole Army corps in Tripoli is looked upon as one of the most difficult operations of the possible. It is known that the fleet, despite the fact that little fear carrying troops to Tripoli is made up of an attack by the Turks is entering. Accordingly every precaution is taken looking to the safety of the troops has been taken and the strictest secrecy maintained, even as to the number of transports employed, the hours of their sailing and the identity of the warships escorting them.

Any message directly or indirectly referring to the military operations is forbidden transmission in any part of the country, unless it has the sanction of the official censor.

The battleship convoy covers a necessary to elude the vigilance of an moving area one mile wide and five miles long. Within this square the transports were ordered extin- troop-laden vessels appear secure guised, and the vessels proceeded from any danger except the ever preceding, flanked and followed by battleships and cruisers. The war- fan coast, it is expected that with all ships in turn are protected on all favorable sea the troops can be landed sides by smaller but faster craft.

VETERAN LAID TO REST

The funeral services of Mr. Marcus M. Collis were held at two o'clock on Tuesday afternoon from the Universalist church, and it was one of the largest attended funerals held here for a long time. The members of the Grand Army were present in large numbers to pay their last respects to one who had always been a good comrade.

Several members of the state department staff from different parts of the state were also present. There were also many business and club men and city and county officials.

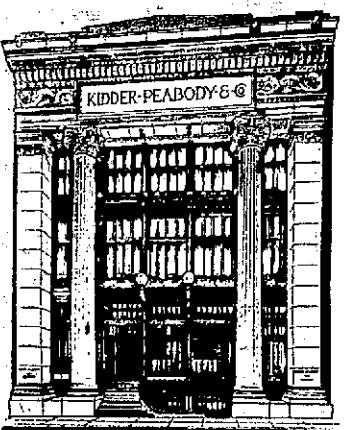

A short prayer service was held at the house by Rev. G. E. Leighton and at the church the services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Leighton, a former pastor, assisted by Rev. Mr. Emmons, the former delivering the eulogy.

The Masonic quartet, Messrs. J. C. Mitchell, G. E. Philbrick, H. P. Monsomery, and C. W. Gray rendered the following selections: "Lear Kindly Light," "The Beautiful Isle of Some Where," and "One Sweeter Solemn Thought."

Department Commander W. A. Beckford and Past Department Commanders William H. Trickey of Tilton, Daniel H. Hall of Dover, Alanason C. Haines of Newmarket, A. D. Scovell of Manchester and Charles Stevens of Nashua were present. The ritualistic service of the G. A. R. was performed by Department Commander Beckford and staff.

Clean pots and pans with GOLD DUST

Germs of decay accumulate on oft-used pots and pans, and ordinary soap and water only clean off the surface.

Gold Dust does the work—and does it right. It digs deep after germs, cleans like a new whistle and leaves your pots and pans as new, as bright as the day they were now—and sanitarily safe.

Gold Dust does this work in just half the time required by soap or any other cleanser. Does it better, too?

Gold Dust cleans everything like magic.

Another point made by the football rules interpreters that was generally missed in the confusion is that when a forward pass goes outside, even if muffed, so that the ball first strikes the ground inside the field, the ball shall revert to the defending team, and may be brought in from the sideline from the point where it went out.

Boston Globe: Up at Dartmouth those wise in track athletics believe that this year's freshman class should turn out a relay team for the Penn carnival next spring that can beat the record. They think that a team made of Reed of English High, Statuary of DeWitt Clinton, Granger of Newark High or Cummings of Buffalo and Llewellyn of the B. A. C. can turn the trick. As last year's Dartmouth freshmen came within a fifth of a second of the record it looks as if the Dartmouth men have an argument.

The case against four Rochester and Barrington citizens, charged with being present at an exhibition of fighting roosters in Barrington, April 16 last, were disposed of in Superior Inson, Sperry H. A Scene from the Merry Farce, "Over Night," which comes to the Portsmouth Theatre during the present month.

No one can sit through a performance of "Over Night" without laughing, and it is laughter of the most spontaneous sort. ANCIENT ARITHMETIC.

Problems Schoolboys Had to Solve Thirty-six Centuries Ago.

There is a ray of vindictive comfort for the modern schoolboy in the fact that for over 3,600 years his schoolboy progenitors have been worried by just such problems in arithmetic as annoy him most.

Among the archaeological discoveries made in Egypt is a papyrus roll, in excellent condition, dating from about 1400 B. C. This roll, which had a long heading beginning, "Directions how to attain the knowledge of all dark things," proves beyond doubt that the Egyptians of that time had a thorough knowledge of the elements of arithmetic.

Numerous examples show that their principal operations with units and fractions were made by means of addition and multiplication. Subtraction and division were not known in their present form, but correct results were obtained nevertheless.

Equations are also found in the papyrus. Here is one that brings the Egyptian schoolboy home to us:

Ten measures of barley are to be divided among ten persons in such manner that each subsequent person shall receive one-eighth less than the one before him.

Another example given is: There are seven men; each one has seven eats; each eat has eaten seven mice; each mouse has eaten seven grains of barley; each grain of barley would have yielded seven measures of barley. How much barley has been lost?

The papyrus also contains the calculation of the area of a circle, attempts to square the circle and finally calculations of the cubic measurements of pyramids.—New York Tribune.

TO INVESTIGATE FREIGHT WRECK

Dumplstead, N. H., Oct. 10.—An investigation was begun today to determine the responsibility for the wreck of two freight cars here yesterday, wheat, in addition to a loss of $40,000 in rolling stock and freight. One life was crushed out, the body of engineer Allen F. Bradley of Hudson, N. H., having been found under the pile of wreckage, after a search of several hours.

Due undoubtedly to a misunderstanding of orders the wreck was the worst that ever occurred on the Worcester, Nashua & Portland division of the Boston & Maine Railroad.

Coming together head-on in a straight stretch of track near the Dumplstead station, the two engines were telescoped into a little more than the length of one, and for 200 yards along the track was piled up the entire mass of smashed and broken locomotives, cars and freight. The line between Nashua and Portland was cleared today.

A large delegation from Charles W. Sawyer Post, G. A. R., of Dover was here on Tuesday to attend the funeral of Past Department Commander Marcus M. Collis.

A force of carpenters in charge of D. Edwin Jenkins, went to Brentwood this morning to put the roof on the new County jail in process of erection at that place.

The residents of Islington street are very much incensed over the delay in work on that important thoroughfare and several have made personal complaints to Mayor Badger. Islington never was meant for an Indian summer sport.

Local gunners are meeting with indifferent success this fall. Thus far but few partridges have been taken and woodcock are nearly as scarce. It is thought this is partially due to the unusually thick covers which have resulted from the unusual amount of rainfall. It is believed that with the advent of cold nights the sport will be much better, particularly woodcock shooting as shooting weather will start the birds south.

BUSINESS MEN'S SUP.

PERS AT Y M. C. A.

The gathering of business men at the Y. M. C. A. last Thursday evening was the beginning of a series of weekly meetings which are creating a great deal of interest.

The plan is a good one and promises to become popular in other cities. In brief it is as follows:

On Thursday evening of each week promptly at 6:15 o'clock supper will be served; at the conclusion of which a speaker who is an authority in his line will present a topic of particular interest to business men along the lines of civics, business economics and social service, adjourning promptly at 8 o'clock.

An idea of the popularity of the plan may be had from the fact that 82 places are guaranteed for the entire season with many other requests for information about the plan at hand.

The arrangements are in charge of the Social and Membership committee of the Y. M. C. A. The committee has been fortunate in securing some speakers of exceptional ability.

This Thursday evening the question of Government by Commission will be presented by Hon. William F. McClintock, chairman of the Board of Control of Chelsea, Mass.

I WONDER

If that $100 is still on the way from Boston for that Waltham game on Labor Day.

How long the people in other cities would stand for such conditions that exists on the lower end of Market street.

If the 400 sailors from the North Carolina won't make things lively in Portland today?

Why a Sunday Boston paper credits Mayor Badger for holding up the Islington street job, when he is fighting the railroad and the contractor every minute to get it done?

What is the real color of the paint on the North church?

If that party who stopped the runaway horse and laundry wagon did not make a hit in checking the mad run of the animal by waiving his coat in the street?

If he didn't make a bigger hit when he refused to turn the outfit over to the driver until he got paid for the hold up?

How he felt when he was handed two dimes and a nickel for the hotel work?

RAILROAD MEN RETIRE

Old Bridge Builder and Road Master Pensioned

Samuel Patterson, a master bridge builder, and Perry A. Eaton, roadmaster, two of the best known men among the old timers on the Boston and Maine railroad, have been retired and placed on the pension roll. Both have served nearly 50 years of railroad life and have been connected with the old Northern New Hampshire, Concord and Portsmouth, and Concord and Montreal railroads.

Mr. Patterson is a resident of Concord.

Mr. Eaton formerly lived at Manchester, but recent years has conducted a fine farming business at East Ware.

TO REPLACE BIG POLE

One of the largest poles in the City at the corner of Vaughan and Deer street, carrying the lights of the Rockingham Light & Power company, will shortly be replaced by a new one.

The work will have to be done at night after the several electric car lines which take power from this city have completed their run.

TWO OF THEM GONE

The poles on Court street which have for many days caused a lot of arguments between the city officials and the Postal Telegraph, were removed on Tuesday. The company has asked further time on the matter of removing the pole on Church street.
